About the Conference

The International Conference on "Indian Knowledge System - A Roadmap For Developed India 2047" aims to highlight the relevance and future potential of India's traditional knowledge as the nation moves toward its centenary of independence. Rooted in rich disciplines such as Ayurveda, Yoga, Classical Sciences, Arts, and Philosophy, the Indian Knowledge System (IKS) offers valuable insights for sustainable development and cultural resilience. This conference brings together scholars, educators, policymakers, and researchers to explore how IKS can be revitalized, integrated with modern science and technology, and aligned with national development goals. By promoting interdisciplinary dialogue and innovation, the event seeks to support India's vision of becoming a global knowledge leader by 2047.

Objectives of the Conference

1. To explore the relevance and contemporary significance of the Indian Knowledge System (IKS) in shaping India's developmental vision for 2047.
2. To examine ways to preserve, promote, and modernize traditional knowledge systems such as Ayurveda, Yoga, Classical Sciences, Arts, and indigenous practices.
3. To encourage interdisciplinary research that integrates IKS with modern science, technology, innovation, and evidence-based approaches.
4. To assess the role of policy, education, and institutional support in strengthening the integration of IKS into national development frameworks.
5. To identify opportunities for global outreach, knowledge exchange, and international collaboration based on India's rich intellectual traditions.
6. To promote sustainable, culturally grounded, and socially inclusive strategies inspired by IKS for national progress.
7. To create a collaborative platform for scholars, practitioners, technologists, and policymakers to share insights and develop long-term plans for advancing IKS by 2047.
8. To inspire future research, innovation, and academic initiatives that align India's ancient wisdom with emerging global challenges and technological advancements.
